AT THE AUDITORIUM.

Big Musical Comedy and Blanche Sweet in the Paramount Production Stelen Goods Today and Tomorrow.

An exceptionally strong bill has been arranged for the Auditorium for today and tomorrow, when The Flower Garden, Girls, a fine musical comedy act with a cast of ten people, and running nearly half an hour, will be the feature vaudeville attraction. This is a bright, clean act full of good comedy, funny situations and several up-to-the-minute musical numbers. There are seven pretty girls in it and many changes of elaborate costumes are are seven pretty girls in it and many changes of elaborate costumes are worn. Besides this big feature, two other good acts have been booked in Ed. (Rawley, a novelty dancer, and Alexander Wood, who presents a novelty blackface musical number.

On the picture programme for Monday and Tuesday only will be Blanche Sweet in Stolen Goods, a corking picturization of Margaret Turnbull's drama of justice and romance. This is a Paramount production and in it Miss Sweet appears at her best. Others in the cast are House Peters, Cleo Ridgely, Sydney Deane and others equally ly, Sydney Deane and others equally prominent. Universal reels will also be shown, including a Nestor comedy entitled Their Happy Honeymoon. The photoplays will all be changed on Wednesday, but the three vaudeville numbers will be here until Thursday, when they will be replaced by three other excellent acts.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

Edith Storey, Roger Lytton in Broadway Star Feature, Ruling Power.

A striking example of the power for A striking example of the power for good that the woman's suffrage holds is found in the big Broadway star feature at the Colonial theatre today entitled The Ruling Power. In it Mr. Williams, a stern father and man of wealth, disinherits his son Hugh for marrying Rose, a seamstress. Twenty years later, although Rose is practically supporting her sick husband, their little store is taken away from them and they are obliged to move. them and they are obliged to move, with Martha, their daughter, to the tenement district. Here follows a bitter fight against the power of evil and poverty. Hugh dies and Mr. Williams, now a politician—to aid his finances meets and takes a liking to Martha. Still bitter against Rose, he offers to adopt the child, but Martha refuses to ve Rose. Steve, an East Side ort," makes trouble for Rose and r daughter, and in desperation Rose to Mr. Williams for aid in suppressing the dance halls and "gar-lens." He refuses and she openly de-nounces him, showing him that if wom-en had the right to vote in her state they could clean out such places. Real-zing the truth of what she saye, Williams lends his influence to woman's suffrage; it wins, and a joyful reunion of the whole family follows.

A Triple Winning is the title of the big Biograph western drama for today also which tells of a young cowboy whose proposal of marriage to a cowgirl of the plains was refused until he had earned his spurs. He overcomes a reputation for cowardice in the villages by a very clever and exceedingly thrill-ing encounter with a bandit, which re-sults in his winning the reward, the badge and girl. Other big films are for today also. Just Out of College, Frohman feature in five reels, for Wednesday next.

DAVIS THEATRE. The Birth of a Nation.

Beginning today, and running all this week, there will be thrown on the screen at the Davis theatre the most remarkable photoplay in the world, The Birth of a Nation. This play has been shown in a majority of the largest cities from coast to coast, and at prices that are coasting in the state of the sta argest cities from coast to coast, and at prices that are ordinarily charged for seats to a high class dramatic production or stellar musical comedy has drawn packed houses constantly.

A person who has never seen this film story of our own country can't begin to realize what a wonderful thing it is. The action starts in the south fust before war times and carries us it is. The action starts in the south fust before war times and carries us through the stirring scenes of the Civil war, including such world-famous incidents of history as the surrender of Lee and the assassination of Lincoln. It hardly seems possible that real battles of the Rebellion and real characters of history can be so faithfully depicted as in this remarkable picture, but the faithfulness to detail is such that many old soldiers of the north and many southerners have been astounded to see the reproductions of scenes which they themselves have actually witnessed.

There is a special orchestra which

By examining the price scale of seats this issue it will be found that or-hestra as well as balcony seats are to be obtained at a very reasonable figure considering the magnitude of the at-considering the magnitude of the attraction.

With the approach of half a century after the actual scenes of the Civil war, this highest development of the motion picture art bears a keen relationship to current events. Aside from its dramatic appeal and poetic flight, it brings back to a younger generation with a new-born realism the things which our fathers and grandfathers went through that out of the travail could come the nation we are so proud could come the nation we are so proud of today. It is not a case of opening old wounds, but is art suggestive, the highest form of art, to point out to us the mistakes and misunderstandings of the past, that we may face the crisis of the present with a columness and of the present with a calmness and determination to uphold the right.

The dramatic form has often been employed by the greatest minds of the world to express underlined truths and as regards the usages and the sufferings of war no pen has been able. as regards the usages and the sufferings of war, no pen has been able to make as impressive a picture as Griffith has encompassed in this masterpiece. ## POETRY CHURCH MILITANT.

"It is to the permanent interest of ne religion that it should not be awn into the wranglings of politics." Evening Bulletin.

What worth religion, glous laws.
That dare not mingle in the fray or turn to battle for a cause.
That stirs the very soul to pray. God made the churches—yes, His will Lies on their altars piain to read; God made the race, shall it be still When it can battle through its creed; Shall honor, treasure, freedom, life
Be threatened by a crew low-browed
And God be shrouded from the strife
Because His pulpit is too proud?

Shall all our rights be trampled down By lock-step of a convict gang; And that one Fortress never frown Which unto Luther's clarion rang? No, no! This is the day to bring
The hidden Ark forth to the lightLet priest and choir and organ sing
The civic hymn of human right, Through street and factory, mart and home

Echo the truth, let it be free;
God hides not in the dim-lit dome;
Throw wide the aisles for liberty.

Harrison S. Morris, in Philadelphis
Public Ledger.

THE UNEXPECTED.

One mocked at death, for being strong of limb,
And fearless, death no terrors had for him; "From out my course I shall not move a jot, Let him approach at will; I fear him Yet, when the conqueror whom he thought to meet
As man meets man, erect upon his ows, he Fell on his knees and writhed in agony Another, not self-confident, but frall, Feared death from his youth upward; e'en would quaii At every shadow which upon his path Seemed pointing toward him in its sombre wrath.

Came creeping in long twilight shad-

Yet, when death came, not wrapped in lengthened gloom As all life long this man expected doom.

But sudden in the sunlight, not a trace Of fear remained; he met him face to face.
